WHY CULTURALLY-SPECIFIC?

Sexual violence in communities of color often intersects and coincides with other forms of violence that our communities face.

Culturally-specific sexual assault resource centers exist to address sexual violence, create resources, and provide innovative programming specific to communities of color.

The aim of the culturally-specific resource centers is to improve services for victims/survivors of sexual violence that are related to sexual assault experiences and their intersections with family violence, domestic violence, and dating violence in the United States.
